Williams Comedy Co., which played here this season, has brought suit against the L. & N. for $25,000, claiming that his wife was injured by one of said company's engines crashing into their private car. Mrs. Williams died a short time before the company came here.

Big Fire at Lexington.
The famous old Phoenix Hotel, at Lexington, was badly damaged by fire Saturday night. The flames were discovered in the clothing store on the corner, and before the fire department could get them under control the entire stock was ruined. The many guests escaped by the way of ladders, telephone poles and other like means.

Scarcity of Water.

Until Monday, not a drop of water had fallen for many weeks, and the cisterns about town were all as dry as a bone. Only one or two cisterns on the Square have any left, and in case of fire the town would be at its mercy. Doctors say the low water is causing much of the sickness about town.

Will Move to Garrard.

Winchester Democrat:—The Baptist congregation at Paint Lick, Garrard county, have bought a lot near their church and will build a parsonage on it. Their pastor, Rev. George Shepherd, formerly of this county, but now of Louisville, will move there to occupy the new parsonage when it builds.

Moves to Danville.

Mr. Geo. M. Overman and wife left last week for Danville. Mr. Overman has been representing the Montenegro-Hiehm Piano Co., here for a number of months, and made many friends.

business at Danville. He was a member of the local orchestra and will be greatly missed.

six crap shooters this week and Judge
Brown soaked them to the tune of $20.
The owner of the house, was held in the sum of $200 to the grand jury.
Two other roosters from Madison were fined ten dollars and cost for running their horses through town. Dee is making the way of the transgressors pretty hard.

Business Change.

Mr. Richard Ward has purchased the interest of Prof. Patterson in the grocery business and the firm is now Ward & Simpson. Mr. Ward traded his pretty new residence, on Richmond street, in the deal. Mr. Ward is one of the most popular men in the county, and the new firm will keep abreast of the times in every way. He will build another residence in the Spring. Mr. Ward will continue his lumber and planing mill business as heretofore.

Elected Major.

Danville Advocate:—Capt. E. W. Lillard was elected Major of the Third Battalion, Second Regiment. The reported complication in the election by the Tyronne Company is incorrect, as this company voted Lillard, 29; Longmire, 3. Captain Lillard will get his commission in a few days.

Help Us Hustle, Then.

Burgin Cor. to Harrodsburg Sayings:—The Lancaster Record and the Danville Advocate are still playing "My ship's-a-comin'," and each boat always has the Southern railway extension stored away in the hold. The only thing we are waiting on now is to see which of the papers is successful. If The Record gets it, it will start from Burgin, but if not, you'd better begin packing up your dishes for we'll have to move Burgin to Danville.

Drug Firm Dissolved.

The drug firm of Lillard & Stout has been dissolved, Captain E. W. Lillard retiring. Capt. Lillard leased the building to Mr. Stout and he will continue the business at the old stand Ansel Ware remains with him as clerk. Captain Lillard has not yet determined just what he will do, but will stay in Danville and go into business, probably into the real estate market, in which he has had some experience. The change will not interfere with his race for State Senator.—
Advocate.

Sale of Livery Stable.

Last Saturday, J. W. Sweeney closed a deal with W. B. Burton for the latter's large stock of livery, on Stanford street. Mr. Sweeney takes all the buggies, harness, stock, feed, etc., and pays Burton $2,608. Mr. Burton sold none of his sale horses, and will continue to handle that class of stock at his large sale barn in "Middleboro." Mr. Sweeney is a young man of business ability, and will make a success of his venture.

Hope They'll Build It.

Richmond Odd Fellows are thinking of erecting a handsome building in that city, the same to contain a first class opera house. We hope they will do so, as a good house there will bring the best of shows this way. The trouble now is that the troupe have to make such long "jumps" to get in here that we have to offer extra inducements to get them. A good house at Richmond will be a wonderful help to Lancaster.

Traveling in Style.

Engineer Henry Lammers, of the Rowland branch, who has recently been off on a visit to friends out west, returned this week "riding" a new engine, or rather his old one so completely renovated and handsomely painted that you can't tell her from a new one. Mr. Lammers has pulled the local train for a number of years, and has a host of friends along the line. He is a careful, steady man, and as clever a fellow as ever pulled a throttle. He makes Capt. Phil Price pull off his hat now when he comes on the new engine.

A Card.

Mr. J. B. Jennings, an experienced man in clothing and accurate in taking measures, will be with me this season, and we will guarantee a perfect fit in your spring suit. We will not handle ready-made goods, but sell you, for $14, a tailor made, absolutely all-wool suit, worth two ordinary suits, from Wanamaker's Philadelphia house; also suits from excellent Chicago and Buffalo houses, at $11.50 up. Give us a call. Quality and fit guaranteed. M. D. Hughes, Agent.

Pays Tax on Parsonage.

An interesting case was decided in Lexington, Monday. The Broadway Christian church in employing the pastor, Eld. Mark Collis, gave him the choice of occupying the parsonage or of renting it out and devoting the proceeds to his salary. He chose to live in his own house and rent out the parsonage. The city claimed it was subject to taxation, which claim the church resisted. The court decided in favor of the city on the ground that the parsonage is not exempt from taxation unless the minister lives in it.

A Wonderful Machine.

Dr. J. B. Kinnaird has purchased the latest improved "X Rays," and the wonderful machine is being put in running order at his office, on Danville street. It was built by VanPorton & Tenbroeck, and is the finest on the market. It cost the doctor $500.
He will use it in reducing fractures, in eating misshapen and for many other purposes for which the invention has proven so successful. It has been given a test, and all bones of the body plainly shown. This is the only X ray machine in central Kentucky, and its purchase shows commendable enterprise on the part of Dr. Kinnaird.

More Local on page 3.

Its the Opinion of Everyone.

The Lexington Herald voices the belief of all those who are well posted on the matter when it says: "It had been thought until recently that in case this lease was renewed the Southern Railway system would not build its Burgin-Jellito extension, which has been in contemplation for several years. But this extension will form a complete connection with the different sections of the Southern system, independent of the Cincinnati Southern, and is therefore of great importance in itself. Besides, it will open up a new and rich country in Kentucky, which will be of value to the road. For these reasons, and in view of the extensive surveys which have been, and are being made, the engineers of the road and other persons in a position to know, have stated that the extension will be built."

BAD BLOOD, BAD COMPLEXION.

The skin is the seat of an almost endless variety of diseases. They are known by various names, but are all due to the same cause, acid and other poisons in the blood that irritate and interfere with the proper action of the skin.

To have a smooth, soft skin, free from all eruptions, the blood must be kept pure and healthy. The many preparations of arsenic and potash and the large number of face powders and lotions generally used in this class of diseases cover up for a short time, but cannot remove permanently the ugly blotches and the red, disfiguring pimples.

Eternal vigilance is the price of a beautiful complexion when such remedies are relied on.

Mr. H. T. Shobe, 2704 Lucas Avenue, St. Louis, Mo., says: "My daughter was afflicted for years with a disfiguring eruption on her face, which resisted all treatment. She was taken to two celebrated health springs, but received no benefit. Many medicines were prescribed, but without result, until we decided to try S. S. S., and by the time the first bottle was finished the eruption began to disappear. A dozen bottles cured her completely and left her skin perfectly smooth. She is now seventeen years old, and not a sign of the embarrassing disease has ever returned."

S. S. S. is a positive, unfailing cure for the worst forms of skin troubles. It is the greatest of all blood purifiers, and the only one guaranteed purely vegetable.

Bad blood makes bad complexions. It purifies and invigorates the old and makes new, rich blood that nourishes the body and keeps the skin active and healthy in proper condition to perform its part towards carrying off the impurities from the body.

If you have Eczema, Tetter, Acne, Scabies, Rheum, Psoarosis, or your skin is rough and pimply, send for our book on Blood and Skin Diseases and write our physicians about your case. No charge whatever for this service.

THURSDAY, MARCH 7, 1901.

The following, taken from the Somerset Journal, is the most sensible, non-partisan and timely talk on the situation in Kentucky that we have had the pleasure of reading in many a day. The Journal says: The Legislature composed of capable men of affairs who not only know the needs of the hour but have the courage and ability to repeal, amend, modify and pass laws that will meet the requirements of a progressive people in a progressive age. We have rounded up a century of existence. We are no longer young and able to go ahead of our laws. The prosperity and future greatness of our State depends upon the enactment of wholesome and helpful laws and the repeal of such as retard our progress. All laws are founded upon human experience. In formulating laws we draw upon our own experience as well as make deductions from the history of other States. Any State that lives entirely in the past and prides itself alone on the history it has made, and lives not up to the present, and reaches not out into the future, is not, will not and cannot be a progressive one. Kentucky is not up to the times. Kentucky is not a progressive State. Kentucky lives too much in the past. Kentucky's laws are too old for the present century. No new and progressive State copies Kentucky's laws. Some of Kentucky's laws bear the marks of hysterical and implacable politics. To meet the demands of the times we must have law-makers, law-modifiers and law-repealers in convocation for the general welfare, who are equal to the requirements of the hour. Our representatives should not only be familiar with the history of all progressive movements made by the States in the past but men of good knowledge of the principles of law.

ENTERPRISING citizens of Lexington have organized for the purpose of connecting neighboring towns with lines of electric railways. The scheme will be pushed to an early completion, and the Lexington papers seem to think that by the end of the year several of the lines will be in operation. It is only a matter of a very short time when all of Central Kentucky will be linked together in this manner. The smaller towns claim it will be a disadvantage to them, but this remains to be seen. Of course some trade will be taken away, but the question is, will the scheme not bring enough advantages in other ways to more than offset what is lost by the shifting of the retail trade.

LEXINGTON capitalists have at last awakened to the fact that they should go into their jeans if they want that pretty city to thrive. The organization of prominent citizens over there for the purpose of constructing inter-urban railroads is a step which should be applauded by every true Kentuckian. We have the best state on the map, and if her monied citizens will only use a little of their means toward her development, we will quickly forge ahead and show our heels to the now laughing sister states of the North.

Nor long since, at a social function given in a town, in South America we believe, two gentlemen were admiring the handsome gowns of the ladies, when one referred to a dress cut decollete as a "rainy day skirt cut off at the wrong end." Gentleman No. 2, seemed to be struck by the comparison, and asked if it were original. "No," replied No. 1, "I think it is a comparison made by the festive Miss Tattler, of the Louisville Times."

In a lecture to young men, a well-known millionaire advises a man out of a job and reduced to $25 to spend the whole amount in a new suit of clothes, a shave and hair cut as a preliminary to asking a position. The trouble is that the average young man of today thinks when he has twenty-five dollars in his pocket that he is rich, and will never have to work any more.

WHILE in Louisville recently, a Mt. Olivet man found a $50 bill, and pocketing the same, made hot haste for home to tell his neighbors of the luck. This was all right, but if the hayseeds were to go home and tell of all the fifties "lost" while in the city, there would be enough sand raised to build a turpentine.

THE Louisville Times spread out over a number of extra pages Saturday. The Times is very popular in this section, as it is up-to-date, progressive, and, best of all, reliable. All honor to its hustling and gentlemanly manager, Bob Brown.

THE consolidation of the tin can manufacturers of the country, with a capital of several millions of dollars has been effected. With this amount of money at their backs, they should have no trouble finding the coin with which to rush the can.

IT is said more politicians were in Washington to see the inauguration than have been there on recent similar occasions. As all the offices are filled, it is hard to account for this.

OUR good friend, John Barry, has made the New Haven Echo into an all home print paper. We congratulate him upon the good fortune he is meeting with.

The Making of Good Coffee

Begins in the growing. Anywhere between the plantation and the coffee pot the flavor may be changed, the quality spoiled by carelessness, inexperience, or unscrupulous methods. From the time Arbuckles' Coffee leaves the hands of the grower until it reaches the user in a sealed packet, it is handled with the same watchful care, the same thought for cleanliness, that you would give any article of food that goes on your table. That's the reason it costs the grocer a cent a pound more than its cheap imitations. The extra cent you pay for buys much more than a cent's worth of quality and strength. A pound of Arbuckles' Coffee will give you more cupfuls of better coffee than you would get from other package coffees.

ARBUCKLES' Roasted Coffee

Be sure you get Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee. Other package coffees are but imitations of Arbuckles'.

In each pound package of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee there is a list of articles. With each package in which the list is found the purchaser has bought a definite part of some article to be selected by him or her from the list, subject only to the condition that the signature on the package is to be cut out and returned to our Notion Dept. You should see this list. Address all communications to

When Pa Goes to Town.

Ma gets up awful early, long 'bout three or four o'clock, and wakes the hired man so he can milk and feed the stock, and lights the kitchen fire, then grinds the coffee mill, and bangs the pots and lids around the stove just fit to kill! And when she puts the mush pan on and sets the table chairs she stands down at the kitchen door and calls to me up stairs: "Now, Bob, just you get up at once and dress and hurry down. There's lots to do this morning, for pa's going to town!"

"Twont do to lie abed such times; obedience is best; and so I rummage in the dark and pretty soon I'm dressed; and when I get down stairs there's pa a stormin' 'round the place, because the water ain't got hot for him to shave his face. And ma, she sets me to luggin' wood, sis, she comes down late just awful cross; and ma, she says indignantly like, "Now, Kate, there ain't no use your being cross. You'd better tell young Brown to stay away the night before your pagues to town!"

Then pa he cuts an awful gash, and ma says serves him right. "There ain't no sense in trying for to shave by candle light." And pa he swears and kicks the cat, and ma she busies round and gets some spider's web and stuff and plasters up the wound; and then the mush it goes and burns 'cause no one's watching it, and ma she grabs it off the stove just like she had a fit, "Good gracious, Kate! I s'pose you'd stand and watch the house burn down! It does seem, like you'd help a bit when pa goes to town."

Pa hurries through his breakfast 'cause there ain't much to spare, and grows because the coffee's weak as cross as any bear; Sis says she "isn't hungry," ma she sniffs and stirs her cup, and Jerry he comes in and says pa'd better hurry up. And when they're gone I sneak away out to the barn and crawl into the mow and burrow 'way over nigh the wall and there I lie and sleep and sleep till dinner comes round, gee! home's a mighty restful place when pa's gone to town!—Ex.

This is, as our readers are aware, an entertainment of more than usual importance, and one of the largest audiences ever assembled in the Danville Opera House will witness the performance. The date is Monday, March 11. The company is an unusually large and well-selected one, and they only play in a few Kentucky cities. Write to C. T. Veatch, manager at Danville, and secure seats now.

Funny, Ain't It?

It is a little funny that some of the business men of Georgetown who "don't believe in advertising" will occupy the most of the sidewalk in exposing their wares to the public gaze.—Georgetown Times. No; they would rather let people passing by take the chances on falling over, or breaking their shins against their wares lying around in the way than pay out a dollar for advertising. That is the way it is over this way.—Harrodsburg Democrat.

You'll find a few of this "Cheap John" variety in every town. They are the gang who tell their customers they get the benefit of the saving made by not advertising in the papers. Make 'em pay for the use of the sidewalks.

Didn't Try His Own Medicine.

Among the many amusing escapes from the Phoenix hotel fire, in Lexington, is one related by a drummer. The knight of the grip says after he had reached the pavement he heard cries for help, and looking up, he saw a man dangling from a third story window. By earnest entreaties, he persuaded the fellow to retain his hold until a ladder could be brought. In the mean time, the cries to the crowd were pitiful, indeed. On being safely landed, he thanked the drummer in loud words and throwing his arms about him, said, "God bless you, my brother, you have saved my life. I work for the Lord. What is your business?" The drummer informed him that he traveled for a whisky house in Cincinnati. That didn't seem to prejudice him, and he gave the drummer a card bearing his name and the words, "Look to Jesus. When lost, read Romans 10:9-13. When about to meet death, read 1 Cor. 15:3-4. When dying, read Ps. 23:4, and under all circumstances read Hebrews 12."

Kind Words for The Record.

We doff our title to Bro. Campbell of the Somerset Journal for the following kind words:

"The Lancaster Record does us the distinguished honor of reproducing our comments upon the need of 'Old Kentucky' under its own chosen caption of 'Good Things from Seph.' Editor Landram is the only man living who is known to have the ability and temper to run a non-partisan newspaper to the eminent satisfaction of both sides during the days of political strife through which we have now happily passed. He is a very remarkable genius who comes nearer to saying just what he pleases upon any and all subjects, save politics, than any editor in the State."

Closing of Colored School.

The closing exercises of the Public School for Colored People will begin Wednesday eve, March 20th at the court house. The exercises will consist of recitations, songs, etc., by the pupils of the lower grades. It is hoped the people will manifest their interest in the school by being present. There is a small indebtedness hanging over the district, and just one more gift will enable us to reach the shore. Only ten cents admission will be charged. The exercises for the other grades will take place on the evening of the 21st at the court house promptly at 8 o'clock. Admission to this, 15 cents. Jas. A. White.

A Hustling Minister.

Rev. A. Pettiford, pastor of the local colored Methodist church, believes in working for the church's interest in every way. The building was recently completed, but the committee did not have enough funds to supply seats. The minister hustled around and got enough money to buy the rough lumber at the saw mill. He then dressed the planks, sawed them to proper length, hauled them to town and is now busy making the pews. If everybody, or even a small percent, of the congregations today would work like this, the churches would not have to fall back on the supper and grab bag policy of raising funds every few months.

Says Somerset Must Win It.

The Blue Grass Graded School Tournament for this year will meet at Lancaster, May 23-25. The list of contests and prizes have been compiled and published from the press of the Lancaster Record. The prizes are usually attractive, and many of them contributed by the merchants and professional men of Lancaster. We know enough of the hospitable spirit of Lancaster people to predict with confidence the royal entertainment of the contestants and visitors by the citizens who have assumed that duty. Editor Louis Landram's Gold Medal prize for contest in reading, grammar grade, must come to Somerset and the picture of the winner go into the Journal; then we will be happy.—Somerset Journal.

A Fine Trip.

Mrs. Daisy Fitzhugh Ayres, well known socially and journalistically throughout the State, brightly identified for many years with the Lexington Leader, and a traveler of wide experience projects setting sail on July 2d for a Mediterranean and comprehensive European tour, to cover eighty days and to include an immense amount of pleasure. She will be accompanied by a merry company of friends from various parts of the state who will travel in first-class accommodations on land and sea, and be at the least expense of any similar party of the year. The itinerary, beginning at Gibraltar and ending at Glasgow, embraces all the principal countries and points of interest of both the continent and Great Britain, with Alpine and Vesuvian climbs, trips through the Black Forest and all the delightful and romantic things possible.

The City Council.

The City Council met Monday night, the entire number being present. The clerk read, for the third time, a resolution to repeal that law prohibiting the setting up of a bowling alley in town. On the vote, five were in favor and one opposed to its repeal. The ordinance, as passed, requires the places to close at ten o'clock at night, fixes the license at ten dollars per year and requires the operators to keep the front windows open at all times. On motion, it was ordered that an area light be placed on the Chute. The marshal said such a light would be of great benefit to him in locating the evil doers. The Electric Light Co., offered to place three lights in the city court room gratis, which offer was accepted and a vote of thanks given. On motion, a vote of thanks was given Mr. A. H. Bastin, manager of the local telephone system, for placing a phone in the city court room for the benefit of the Council. Quite a number of small claims were presented and passed upon.

Josh Billings on Insurance.

I am to the conclusion lately that life was so uncertain that the only way for me to get a fair chance with other folks was to get my life insured, so I called on the agent of Garden Angel Life Insurance Company and answered the following questions, which were put to me over the top of a pair of spectacles by a slick old fellow with a rough gray head on him as any ever owned: "Are you a male or female? If so state how long you have been so. If you a father or mother? If so which? Are you subject to fits? If so, do you have more than one at a time? What is your precise fighting water? Did you ever have any ancestors, and if so how much? Did you ever have a night mare? Are you married or are you a bachelor? Have you ever committed suicide, if so, how did it affect you? After answering the above like a man, in the affirmative, the slick little fat fellow, with golden spectacles on, said I was insured for life and would probably remain so for years. I thanked him, smiled and retired.

Autumn sown grain in England is apparently in good condition, that country having had a fair amount of rainfall and no severe weather up to midwinter. It is understood that the acreage under wheat is not especially large.

Argentine wheat crop, now being marketed, is the subject of much speculation. Authorities differ in their estimates, but it is agreed that the crop is perhaps a quarter less than a year ago, with 40 to 50 millions available for export to Europe.

Hogs are proving good money makers for farmers this winter. Never was there a time when swine were more popular as a quick money crop than now. The west has been fortunately free from serious swine diseases, and in spite of good country prices for corn the profits are on the right side.

A sale of feeders was made at $5.00 last week. The cattle were hornless blacks, breed not named, and averaged 800 pounds. W. Behrens, Middleton, Ill., marketed on Wednesday a load of 1,222 pound yearling at $5.85. The steers were strictly prime and topped the market for such stock with the exception of the Shorthorns that brought $6.—Breeders' Gazette.

Burgin Record.—Mercer county farmers are engaging quite extensively in sheep raising. Thomas Chatham, north of Burgin, informs us that he has seventy ewes with ninety-five lambs, all doing well. He reports that most of the farmers in his section, however, are having a great deal of trouble with their lambs and that many of them are dying.

The farmers of Western Kentucky are to put a heavier crop of tobacco this year than for many years previous. The mild weather of January has given them the opportunity of preparing plant beds, and the ground has been in splendid condition for seeding. The satisfactory price of last year's tobacco crop has been the incentive for the preparation for a large crop.

Cleanliness, sunlight and pure air is nature's preventive of disease. Protect your fowls from the cold winds, but don't cut them off from sunlight and pure air. In constructing a hen house keep these cardinal points in sight. The healthiest poultry I have seen were those roosted in houses with high walls and well up above the droppings.

Danville News.—T. B. Bright & Co's jack sale yesterday was eminently successful in every particular. There were 30 jacks sold at an average of $300, the highest bringing $715. There was a large crowd present, a number of buyers from other states being in attendance; the bidding was very spirited at times. The interest manifested in the sale and the prices paid is an evidence of the improved condition of mule raising.

JAMES F. BALLARD, St. Louis

HOW REGINALD WON.

"I'll propose to her next Sunday, sure!" That's what Reginald had been saying to himself for nearly a year. But somehow when the next Sunday came and he found himself standing by her at the piano singing "Robin, I'll Be True to Thee," or some equally passionate ditty, he felt like a guilty thing, his heart failed him and he had not the courage to ask the important question.

There were many reasons for his hesitation. Sometimes Dolores, the telegraph operator, was there. Then there was McKimm, who kept the corner grocery and brought candy to her little brother. Reginald didn't know how "strong" they were with her, but he knew that they had made ardent pursuit as long as he had, and that their presents to her had been more numerous and expensive than his.

"Oh, I don't know," he would say to himself, as he surveyed his own sartorial splendor in the mirror. "They may be able to do me on gifts, but when it comes to style, to conversation, to the art of disingenuous air, I guess the grocer and the key-pounder are not exactly among the present!"

Then the hesitating young man, whose salary was raised to $15 a week at New Year's and whose matrimonial plot had ever since kept him awake at night, would again essay the fateful task of bringing on the crisis. But things came to such a pass at last that no matter what night he called either Dolores or McKimm, there was ahead of him, in the night, the grocer, who had never before had the assurance to sing in Reginald's presence, actually stood up and sang "There's Only One Girl in This World for Me." Actually she rewarded him by saying:

"Why, Mr. McKimm, I had no idea you could sing with so much expression!"

Reginald quivered when he witnessed this scene. He was sitting quietly in a corner, mechanically turning the pages of the family Bible. He did not applaud the song with his hands, but he was feelingly repeating: "Very fine! Very fine!" when his eyes lit upon the scrawled record of births and deaths in her family. There it was—the date of her birth—and the anniversary only a week off! He saw his chance to bring discomfiture to his rivals, neither of them aware of his presence, and of the approach of the eventful day.

He even abandoned the field to the grocer rather early that night. All the way home his mind was running on feather boas, boxes of gloves, seal muffs, manure sets and the prices thereof, for Reginald had already determined to give her a birthday present which, if not the only one she got, would certainly be the most costly and the most beautiful. The grocer and the telegraph operator had already risen to the dizzy heights of second boxes of gloves, silk umbrellas, and lace handkerchiefs, while thus far the noblest gift he had bestowed upon her had been a Christmas edition of "Lucile," with this inscription:

"May clouds enough be thine to make a glorious sunset."

The very next day he stretched his lunch hour till two o'clock, and in the neatly wrapped box which he stowed upon his high desk there was a seal cape lined with black quilted satin, in which he confidently believed his fate lay. He had intended that night and invited her to attend the "show" on the following Saturday night. He didn't refer to the fact that Saturday was to be her birthday, and she seemed to forget it, but she promised.

He had the seal cape with him when he called for her on Saturday evening, and she was so delighted that he came near proposing then and there. In the cars going downtown she was so coquettish, so alluringly winsome, that Reginald became eloquent, and kept up a rather free and easy conversation all evening. By the time the hero and heroine of the play saw all their troubles vanish in the last act he was rehearsing the very sentence with which he determined to seal his fate as soon as she should reach her door. His attentions were so assiduous that she seemed a bit "flattered," and they were half way home in the street cars when she suddenly discovered that she had left her new seal cape in the theater.

Back they hastened, forgetting for the time even the paramount issue that had been uppermost in his mind all evening. Of course, the theater was dark, but an obliging young man in the box office turned on the electricity and the proposed seal cape in a twinkling was found. It hadn't been turned in by the ushers, and so Reginald and the young lady were obliged to go home with their hearts sad, but unusually sympathetic. Every time the seal cape was mentioned the tears came into her eyes, and when he intimated that there were others to be had where the first had come from she commanded him not to think of buying another. Then she said it wasn't the cape itself that made her grieve, but the fact that she had been the gift of a friend—a very dear friend. When she got that far Reginald was almost ready to suggest that he hoped to be something dearer even than a friend, but her father opened the door just then and the chance was lost.

She called him up on the telephone the next morning, and they arranged to meet at noon and go to the theater again for the purpose of inquiring about the cape. The manager sent a junior with them to look for it, and the cloakroom and office were ransacked in vain. Then they went to lunch and were very confidential and amiable for they both felt bereaved over the loss, and they were sharing their first mutual sorrow. Reginald was almost glad the cape had been lost. It gave him a chance to exchange condolences with her, and brought them closer together in every way.

That afternoon while he was at work over his ledger the theater people telephoned to him. They had found the cape. He rushed down to the box office and got the treasure. The usher who had found it had simply locked it up in his closet for safety over night, and turned it in to the manager that afternoon. As the manager gave the cape in a newspaper and rewarded the honest usher an inspiration came to him. He went to a furrier and paid 50 cents for a brand new box and had the cape wrapped in tissue paper and packed into it. Then he wrote the following letter:

"My Ever Dearest Friend: I could not bear to see you grieving over the little cape I gave you, so I have bought you another as near like it as I could find. I send it by bearer, and hope you will accept it as a token of my undying love. Yours till death."

"REGINALD."

"P. S.—I'll be down to-night. Hope Dot and Mae will not."

"REGGY."

Dolores has agreed to be Reggy's best man, but McKimm is "hard hit," and is seriously thinking of dunning her father for the grocery bill, even at the risk of losing their family trade.—Chicago Daily Record.

THE DIVINE SECRET.

Living for Others Instead of Self the Real Secret of Human Happiness.

To most very young people the meaning of life resides in what they can get out of it for themselves; but, as they grow older and they experience the strains, the disappointments, and the disillusion that come even to the most favored, the perspective shifts. If they have the faculty of clear and straight vision, they see that the meaning of life, the secret of its wealth and power and glory consists in what they can do for others. Then the first question they ask is not, "How can I enjoy the most?" but "How can I be the most helpful?"

The transition from one mood to the other is something like a conversion and a remarking of character. It really is religious, though not always consciously so. Some bereavement or disillusion throws us back upon ourselves, and we see the truth; and, after we have once seen it and accepted it, we are never again quite the same. The center of gravity of personal life has shifted away from ourselves to others, or to God. And, strangely enough, many a troubled man and disappointed woman has found when they made this discovery—that the greatest anyone can make—that instead of being at the end of their happiness, a new fountain of joy has been unsealed in their own hearts. Some of the happiest people you know, in whose eyes you see gleams of the eternal morning, are those who have suffered most; but they have learned the Divine secret.—Boston Watchman.

Good Luck and Ill Luck.

If what is commonly termed good luck comes to you, accept it with gratitude, and if what is termed ill luck comes to you, accept it with fortitude. But no life can be planned in view of the one or the other.—Rev. Dr. Vought.
